Libink I shall never forget oor first speeches in our eventful cunvass. As I stated to my last they were annio at Fergusna's. It was in Juneweather was us warm as that fabled take where it is said the "Lord even forgeticili to be merchil"-the farmers were extremely busy har-vesting, ongerity slife, with waved the ripening grain and bright gleaned the sickle. In that portion eithe county machinery is used but very little, and men have to still cling to the ohi-fashioned scythe and cradie. There were very few present, probably not more than a score. Pin-ner this day consisted of a tea keills full of beiled eggs. Right here I want to digress far enough to say that Dick McDanlel can crowd more boiled eggs into a smaller space than any other man that lives. this storbe as boundless as the winds, as broad as space and as entites as a woman's tongno. People were anxwoman's tongue. People were mix-burs to hear speaking and oil of us were anxious in speak, yet each rath-er dreaded to hegin, for he did not know what his opponent would say in reply. Speceli making is a good thlog if a man knows what to say, or rather what not lo soy, that is say, or rather what not lo soy, that is the idea, the main point, the milk in the coconnut of the whole mailer, to fearn what not lo say. When a man has learned this he can make a grant speech. I lost some votes by my manager. spreches. I know it now; I knew it then, and yet I could not well keep making them as I did; for to tell the minklog them as i dist; for to tell the tritth I was very badly embarrassed, and I would say something about an ohl line in spite of me, that some persums would consider indiscreet to say the least. I am of the opinion haw that one good pointed joke, well told, will do more good with the masses than an hour's logh, and I would rather have one man who is a good yeller for me that six bank presidents, with all the pomposity and dents, with all the pomposity and splendtd dignity that seems to guiher and cling roood them like the lvy and cling roood them like the lvy around the oak. People go hi yanga like hirds, go together. There ha a lender cord that seems to bind the great masses together; they are easily enthosed and excited and the idea is to carry them by slorm; throw across their paths a ray or two of smishine, however chudy may be your own Aud, too, a man should speak cernestly, speak like he leeds every word he said and was in dead carnest. I shall not attempt to give any of the shall not altempt to give any of the speeches loade, and yet I heard thom so much, so mony, many lines, that I could almost, even now, glye them word for word. I will say, inwever, that purson Barrow and Maj Breethfit were the orators of the whole Bock; that when they spoke they al-ways had attention. The former for years haying been accustomed to speaking, was always caim. cool, logical and deliberate, never soffered dimsell to became excited, never sulfered his opponent to throw him off his guard. The latter was impul-

This is on the extreme edge of the county, just ou the dividing time be county, just on the dividing line be tween Christian, Muhlenburg and Todd countles. I saw some of the grandesi scenery on this ride my ever ever beheld. Mountains old as time reared their heads upward and up-ward until their peeks scened lost annil the blue other above. Valley brnod as prairies—green as the bay iree and fertile, as fertility lisely streiched out before me. In the orevices and on the barren erags of these mountains for centeries untils turbed end unharmed the Esgles and Vultures have made their neets and Vultures have made their nests and seemed their young. So high op and se secorety hid that the, built of the best almed rife can never reach them. Over these fertile valley room some so fine stock as is to be; seen anywhere in Kentucky.
